

WHY NOT TAKE A LOOK AT SOME OF OUR NEW BOOK TITLES (VOLUME 2)

TICKLEMICE

As Jethro embarks on a journey to fetch his wife's grandmother, he has no idea that he is the last of the 'Ticklemice', nor of the impending danger that lies ahead. Jethro meets 'larger than life' Timmo, an ex-marine militia otter who is on a mission himself. He must find and rescue his family from the evil Raiders.

Does Jethro fully discover his heritage as a Ticklemouse? Will he and Timmo rescue their families?

G S Powell has written this delightful tale of perseverance and friendship. The colorful characters of the animal kingdom and the message of overcoming obstacles and enduring friendship will surely be enjoyed by readers of all ages.

THE THOUGHTS OF IAN FREWER

For more than ten years British readers in Spain of the Costa Blanca News group of newspapers have been amused, saddened, infuriated, enraged or merely interested by Ian Frewer's thought-provoking weekly column.

Ian writes about anything and everything; people, politics, history, his own life and the lives of others. His perceptive insights into expatriate life in Spain, politics in Great Britain, life in general or even the adventures of his now-famous cats makes for fascinating reading.

Now, this book brings together for the first time a compilation of the best of his work, as originally published in the Costa Blanca News group, plus some original work, never before published.

GRAIN OF THE WOOD

In the 1920's, after the war to end all wars, John Manders was very much the king of his own little kingdom in Port of Leith, Edinburgh. The autocrat ran his timber yard the way he wanted and Manders was not for changing. But changes were to come in a most unexpected way. His doting daughter Jeannie found her whole character was put to the test when she is taken from her sheltered existence in the comfortable suburbs of Leith and thrown in at the deep end of a male dominated timber yard. Jeannie, with a mind of her own, has to face prejudice and scepticism on all sides. Her greatest danger comes from Wattie, a young man with ambition, cunning and of a questionable background. Wattie wanted more, the timber mill of his work would be a start. Manders Timber accidentally came within his grasp. Even money was not to be his worry after finding a skeleton in a cupboard....but another kept the door shut! A power struggle between Wattie and Jeannie ensues over the future of the yard and John Manders appears to be oblivious to what is going on.
